Task-based usability testing and performance measurements over the internet.

Using Python and Flask

Stefan Eng
<atn08sen@student.lu.se>

DIVISION OF ERGONOMICS AND AEROSOL TECHNOLOGY | DEPARTMENT OF DESIGN SCIENCES
FACULTY OF ENGINEERING LTH | LUND UNIVERSITY

June 11, 2020

MASSIVE
MASSIVE ENTERTAINMENT | A UBISOFT STUDIO

Some quick facts:

- 650+ Employees
- Main office in Malmö
- Secondary office in Stockholm
- Some work with external actors

The science:

> ❝the current findings confirm that although sharing information is important to team outcomes, teams fail to share information when they most need to do so.❞
>
> – Information Sharing and Team Performance: A Meta-Analysis

The anecdote:

> ❝As soon as we were close the deadline they abandoned <communication-tool> and used Post-its instead, because it just works.❞
>
> – Manager
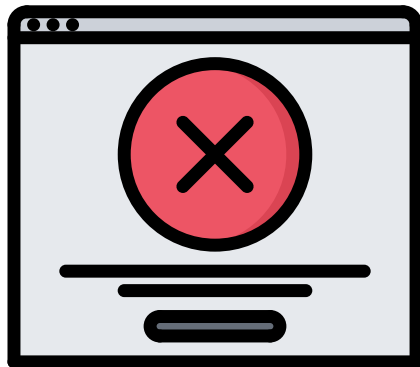

: Communication is good, but hard

The science:

> the current findings confirm that although sharing information is important to team outcomes, teams fail to share information when they most need to do so.
>
> – Information Sharing and Team Performance: A Meta-Analysis

The anecdote:

> As soon as we were close the deadline they abandoned <communication-tool> and used Post-its instead, because it just works.
>
> – Manager

Python Flask

Development Iteration, User centric.

Prototype Interfaces.

Actual Implementation.

Results.

Conclusion.

Thank you for listening!

Questions?